Postcards never go out of style

I just returned from a vacation to England, and from the abuse I've been taking from some of my friends since I got back, you'd think they wanted me to stay overseas.

My crime? Sending them postcards.

When I travel for leisure, I don't usually take my laptop or smartphone. I communicate with people back home by sending them postcards—and my mom isn't the only one who appreciates it.

Some people may think that in our world of instant status updates, emails, texts and tweets, the old snail-mail tradition of sending our loved ones a postcard from our summer vacations would've died. Well, I know better, and I was so surprised by the ribbing I got for sending postcards that I did a little research. While I couldn't find any numbers for the U.S., I did find a story by The Economist that says the British receive 30 million more postcards each year than they did a decade ago even as personal mail delivery has plummeted.

Sending postcards is one of the most satisfying parts of any journey. There is nothing like going to a roadside shop and haggling over the price of some cheap, pun-riddled and annoying local postcards with messages such as "Hottest Ass in Guadalajara"—featuring a donkey in a sombrero, of course—and then thinking of the right victims to mail them to.

Scribble a short message that you know the most curious assortment of mailmen probably will read and you're all set.

Most of the emails or digital photos I get from someone else's travels end up getting deleted after a while, but postcards are savored as a keepsake. How many of them have you seen on someone's refrigerator for years on end?

It's because nothing beats the feeling of holding a real card that captures a moment in time, for example when one of your family members visited the Cadillac Ranch art installation in which cars are buried nose-first in the ground in Amarillo, Texas, and thought of you. Or when your Bears fan frat buddy thought you needed to know he had been to the birthplace of Walter Payton.

For travelers who refuse to let go of their gadgets, there is good news. There is an app that sends a real stamped postcard after the user chooses the design (for example, a smartphone picture) and types a message.

I'll admit there are a few annoyances about sending postcards that are hard to avoid. Have you ever tried to find a 98 cent stamp to mail a postcard internationally? Or asked a non-English speaker for directions to the nearest mailbox? Or given up on a card ever arriving, only to have it show up six months after you mailed it? But to me that's all part of the fun.

"Send me a postcard" still is a popular phrase in our vernacular when someone takes off for some exotic location. I just happen to take it literally.

DEJA SPOOF

THEATER'S HOTTEST TREND SENDS UP 'JERSEY SHORE,' 'TWILIGHT' AND RAHM

By Julia Borcherts

FOR REDEYE

Ugly friends have feelings too. "Sometimes I wake up in a tub, and sometimes I wake up in a ferret cage," sings one of the grenade girls in "Jersey Shore: The Musical," a spoof show now playing to packed houses in Lakeview.

The show, put on by sketch troupe 4 Days Late at Studio BE, satirizes sex with grenades (aka ugly chicks), Sammi and Ronnie's arguments, The Situation's abs, and plenty of other things we love/hate about the East Coast crew who tans for a living.

The onstage spoof—a parody or satire of an original work—isn't limited to reality TV shows. In fact, there are many pieces of pop culture being spoofed in Chicago right now: superheroes ("You're Not My Captain, America"), gaming ("Boobs and Goombas: A Super Mario Burlesque" and "Fellowship of the Boobs: An LOTR, WoW, D&D, RPG Burlesque") and classic sci-fi ("A Nude Hope: A Star Wars Burlesque").

Local cultural icons are getting lampooned as well—Annoyance Productions is enjoying success with "Oprah! A Comedy! Live Your Best Laugh" and "[Bleep] You, I Love You, Bye: The Rahm Emanuel Story."

But wait, there's more: Gorilla Tango is producing two more new nerd burlesque shows this year ("Boobs of Khan: A Star Trek Burlesque" and "Areola Jones and the Temple of Boobs") and remounting a fangbangers spoof ("True Twilight: A Glee Club Musical").

So what's with all the spoof shows? Certainly, in rough economic times, theater companies want to choose material likely to fill seats. It seems to be working: While some parody productions have demonstrated more lasting power than others, not one of the theater companies RedEye spoke with can recall a spoof it produced that turned out to be a complete flop.

"People gravitate toward that which they know," said Annoyance Productions artistic director Mick Napier, who has been producing satiric shows since 1987. "And that which they know made fun of is even more fun for them."

Timing seems to be the key to choosing subject matter that con-

SNOOKI'S IN THE HOUSE

So what's it like to have Snooki as your alter ego? We checked in with "Jersey Shore: The Musical" star Anna Schlegel, who hails from nowhere near the East Coast—the actress moved to Chicago five years ago from Iowa. J.B.

It would be easy to turn Snooki into a caricature, but you don't. How do you make her sympathetic?

I actually really like Snooki. I think she's just funny and ridiculous, and she seems to just have a really great time all the time. So I guess that I'm trying to capture the joy in Snooki. I think that's what people are responding to—either that or just the writing is such that it automatically makes her more sympathetic. You can be this ridiculous person who's eating a pickle, and people will still be on your side.

Tickets: $20; 773-598-4549, gorillatango.com

nects with audiences.

"I would never put 'The Brady Bunch' up right now; it's kind of waaaaay done. But back then, 20-some years after it was on television, it was time to revisit that," Napier said. "I think it's just a matter of ... where people are and where the universal consciousness is."

Annoyance's "Rahm" show takes quirky facts about our new hizzoner—ballet, anyone?—and incorporates them into larger-than-life fictional scenarios—in this case, giving him a demanding dominatrix of a ballet instructor to show how that shaped his character. But the "Jersey" cast has a different approach.

"Snooki wears a lot of leopard print and whines a lot," said 4 Days Late artistic director Erin Lane. "JWoww wears shirts that show off the ladies but maintains a rather bully, masculine way of carrying herself. And Sammi mopes around in pajamas and tight dresses with horizontal rips down the back. But we're not doing impressions. We've created characters inspired by the real people, which is why Angelina is played by a man [Nate Stoner]."

So if spoof shows are here to stay—at least for the foreseeable future—does that mean that we're on a slippery artistic slope to social irrelevance? Not at all, says Lane, who believes that a well-done parody offers two things that we can all use right now: a good time and an opportunity for audience members to start a conversation about what's going on in the world.

"We have something to say, and we feel like we're hitting upon something in society that is palpable at this time," she said. "And I think we can make our point through this medium and make a point about this medium at the same time."

"Plus, everyone knows the show. I watch the show, I love the show, I think it's fantastic. It's like watching a train wreck; you can't look away. I hate myself for it, but, you know—you get over it."

JULIA BORCHERTS IS A REDEYE SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR.

How long does it take to fix your pouf?

It used to take me an hour and a half. Now I've gotten it down to 20-30 minutes. You can tell how much trouble I've had with it—the bigger it gets, the more times I've had to rat it up. So if I'm having a bad day, it's just giant. Last week, it was seriously like 6 inches tall.

Were you a "Jersey Shore" watcher before you took on this role?

I had watched one or two episodes before we started this process, and I would not have considered myself a fan. And then [artistic director] Erin Lane and I watched the episode where Snooki and Vinny get in the fake fight on the beanbag, and they say the line about, "I need companionship—come snuggle with me." And that was when I was like, "All right, now I'm hooked; now I think it's funny."

What other research did you do?

I read Snooki's book, which actually helped. She wears three pairs of fake eyelashes, so I wear three pairs of fake eyelashes. I'm sure she would be appalled with the way I do the pouf because she does not tease her pouf—it's all with the clip and gravity and good hair. I also watched GIFs—you know, those online pictures that move? It's really helpful to get somebody's mannerisms—people are only making those GIFs if it's a quintessential Snooki-ism, so if you watch them over and over again, it can help you get her patterns down. That was kind of my 21st-century rendition of character research.

What's the most "Jersey Shore" thing about your life?

It's so funny—the differences in our lives from theirs. They don't have jobs, and they just spend all their time getting tan. We all work 40 hours a week and then do theater. But I have a tiny, 4-pound Chihuahua named Buddy, and sometimes we call him Lean Cuisine [The Situation's name for JWoww's dog]. We live with eight other theater people in this giant house in Lincoln Park, which is the other thing that's kind of "Jersey Shore"-esque. It's kind of a theater commune, and we rehearse there, too. So the dog will wander in to a rehearsal, and we'll be like, "Lean Cuisine, get out of here!"

'SIXES' HAS A SEXY SECRET

By Oline H. Cogdill

ORLANDO SUN-SENTINEL

BOOK

The Sixes
by Kate White

Mean girls seldom grow out of their meanness; they just find more sophisticated or sneaky ways to bully others. Anyone who watches Bravo's "Real Housewives" franchise knows what happens to mean girls when they become women.

Mean women, making life miserable for anyone who crosses them at an elite private college, abound in Kate White's highly entertaining "The Sixes." White, editor-in-chief of Cosmopolitan magazine, delivers a superior mix of romantic suspense and pure mystery while avoiding clichés. "The Sixes" works well as an academic mystery, a women's novel and an insular village mystery with the private school standing in for a small town.

If anyone would be ripe for the machinations of mean girls it would be Phoebe Hall. But Phoebe has come to Lyle College as a teacher, not a student, and that should put her above the gossip antics in this small Pennsylvania town. Should. But doesn't. Phoebe, the author of several best-selling celebrity biographies, has had a bad year. Her long-term boyfriend has left her and she's been falsely accused of plagiarizing her latest book. An offer to teach at the college where her close friend, Glenda Johns, is its president, sounds like a cure-all. But no one is above the sniping along the grapevine, and Phoebe's past is too juicy to be ignored.

When one of the students is found dead, Phoebe is asked by Glenda to look into the rumor that the young woman was targeted by the super-secret club The Sixes. But do The Sixes even exist, or is this a rumor too? Phoebe's ability to interview people—and get them to tell her their deepest secrets—uncovers other deaths and a few ruined lives that appear to be linked to The Sixes.

White keeps "The Sixes" on a steady keel as she builds secret upon secret while showing that these rumors hint at a group that might not even exist. The college's idyllic atmosphere is the perfect setting for illustrating an evil that can exist beneath a placid surface.

As she does with her Bailey Weggins series, White shows her affinity for tension-laden plots with "The Sixes."

Blue Songs

Hercules & Love Affair

For Hercules & Love Affair's first album, mastermind Andy Butler drafted producer Tim Goldsworthy of DFA and singer Antony Hegarty of Antony & the Johnsons to create one of 2008's best LPs. Neither returns for "Blue Songs." Happily, Butler finds other worthy collaborators to fulfill his updated vision of late-'80s house and techno. With contributions from six vocalists, "Blue Songs" feels a bit like a DJ nightclub set. Blatant echoes of Grace Jones, ESG, Yazoo and Pet Shop Boys add to the period flavor but don't detract from the immediacy. STEVE KLINGE, THE PHILADELPHIA INQUIRER

GAME

Insanely Twisted Shadow Planet

For XB360 via Xbox Live Arcade

Exploring "Insanely Twisted Shadow Planet" is akin to wandering around a country without knowing the language, and that's where its genius lies. "Planet" marries traditional 2-D space shooting gameplay with the kind of nonlinear exploration found in "Metroid." "Planet" isn't as sharp as "Metroid" about keeping the backtracking to a minimum, and purely as a space shooter it's more good than great. The game redeems itself not only with the variety of gadgets you eventually collect but in the clever way it challenges you to figure out the right tool for every job.

DVD

The Conspirator

Robert Redford's story of the only woman charged in the Abraham Lincoln assassination plays more like a History Channel special than an episode of "Law & Order." His direction is wanting. The whole film flows like a connect-the-dots book on the Lincoln assassination. Redford carefully draws lines from one point to another but fails to fill in the color to make it vivid. He's so concerned with recounting the facts that human elements are lost in the story's dusty wake.

ALBUM

Jeff Bridges

Jeff Bridges

"Crazy Heart" Oscar winner Jeff Bridges can beautifully portray a grizzled country star on-screen, but that doesn't make him a country singer. Although his self-titled album starts on a winning Buddy Holly note with the late Stephen Bruton's "What a Little Love Can Do," and he adds a certain understated pathos to his own "Falling Short," his friendly and familiar voice ultimately proves one-dimensional. This shortcoming is especially evident on meandering, atmospheric tracks such as "Maybe I Missed the Point" and "The Quest."

Priest

Available now

A warrior priest (Paul Bettany) must save his niece (Lily Collins) from a murderous pack of vampires in this film that falls into a new genre: the spaghetti vampire Western. It combines the brooding outsider reluctant hero who must save a dusty world—the plot that made the Sergio Leone films of the 1960s so popular—with the brutality of blood-sucking movies such as "Underworld." It should have been "The Good, the Bad and the Undead."

Sugar fest

Lady Marmalade French toast ($9.50)

These triangles of house-made brioche at North Center's Marmalade (1969 W. Montrose Ave. 773-883-9000) arrive slathered with orange marmalade, served in a pool of creme anglaise and raspberry coulis and sprinkled with sugar-kissed dried bananas for crunch.

Calzone di frutta ($10)

At Little Italy's Davanti Enoteca (1359 W. Taylor St. 312-226-5550), this crusty sugar-kissed pocket of dough has steamy seasonal fruit (cinnamon-y apples and plump cherries when we last ordered it) hidden inside and a dish of mascarpone whipped cream for topping.

Chocolate and dried-cherry French toast ($11)

Not nearly as big of a sugar bomb as it sounds, this dish from River North cafe Brunch (644 N. Orleans St. 312-265-1411) is surprisingly restrained in its sweetness, with tart cherries buried in the bread. A generous helping of smooth-as-silk whipped cream on top adds to the dish rather than overloading it.

Toffee pancakes ($9)

These giant flapjacks from Frontier (1072 N. Milwaukee Ave. 773-772-4322) in Noble Square might look fairly innocuous, but there's a second helping of super-sweet crushed toffee layered in between the cakes.

Vegan s'mores ($9)

This dish at Bleeding Heart Bakery & Cafe (1916 W. Chicago Ave. 773-904-1414) opening Monday in West Town, sounds like the ultimate in decadence: dark-chocolate pancakes with marshmallow cream, coconut ganache and graham cracker crumbles.

'Better than the original' is only just OK

Fright Night (R)

Jerry (Colin Farrell), the new dude in a Las Vegas neighborhood, might be a vampire. Actually, he definitely is. It's only a matter of time until his neighbor, Charley (Anton Yelchin), accepts the signs and works to protect his mom (Toni Collette) and girlfriend (Imogen Poots).

The verdict: "Fright Night" is so straightforward and surprise-free, it's something of an achievement that the movie moderately succeeds anyway, mostly because of Farrell's playful villainy and David Tennant's awesome turn as an arrogant British magician from whom Charley seeks vampire-killing advice. The CGI-heavy movie's not scary but intense, not hilarious but amusing, and not fully rewarding but fun in the details. Good enough.

How to maximize a weekend's worth of Chicago baseball

By Scott Bolohan

FOR REDEYE

This weekend offers a rare chance to attend Cubs and White Sox games both Saturday and Sunday. Here's the itinerary for the Ultimate Chicago Baseball Weekend.

SCOTT BOLOHAN IS A REDEYE SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR.

Double dipping

SATURDAY

1 p.m.: Head to your favorite Wrigleyville bar. You'll need it with the amount of bad baseball you're about to see.
2 p.m.: Arrive at Wrigley Field. Get the promotional Cubs notepad to keep track of your adventure.
3:10 p.m.: First pitch, Cubs vs. St. Louis. Scheduled pitchers are Matt Garza and Edwin Jackson. Get bleacher seats.
4:32 p.m.: Albert Pujols hits his second homer of the game. Take a moment to imagine how he'd look in a Cubs uniform.
4:33 p.m.: Realize that's never happening. Frown.
5:12 p.m.: Seventh-inning stretch, the traditional time to leave Cubs games. Debate whether to leave Cubs game or stay and see Carlos Marmol blow the save. Decide to leave.

5:50 p.m.: Arrive at U.S. Cellular Field, miraculously score the last Mark Buehrle bobblehead.
6:10 p.m.: First pitch, Sox vs. Texas. Alexi Ogando faces Jake Peavy.
6:39 p.m.: Lengthy delay as Jake Peavy's arm detaches.
7:49 p.m.: British Invasion Night at the Cell. Become super irritated at all the "Austin Powers" clips.
9:42 p.m.: Alex Rios strikes out to end the game on a pitch Dayan Viciedo would have hit for a walk-off homer.
10 p.m.: Three more "Austin Powers" references. British Invasion-themed fireworks begin.
10:32 p.m.: Take the "L" home. You stand the whole way.

SUNDAY

Noon: Take the "L" to U.S. Cellular Field.
1 p.m.: It's Kids Back to School Day, so keep score with a No. 2 pencil.
1:10 p.m.: First pitch, John Danks faces Derek Holland.
3:49 p.m.: Danks takes a shutout into the eighth.
4:06 p.m.: Sergio Santos is brought in to blow the save.
4:12 p.m.: Santos blows the save.
4:39 p.m.: Adam Dunn strikes out to end the game on a pitch Viciedo would have hit for a walk-off homer.

5 p.m.: Get on the "L" to Wrigley.
5:40 p.m.: Arrive to watch Pujols take batting practice.
6:42 p.m.: Run into Buster Olney. Say something awkward to him.
7:05 p.m.: First pitch, Rodrigo Lopez vs. Jake Westbrook.
8:03 p.m.: Tony LaRussa does something super brilliant no one notices.
9:21 p.m.: Doze off. It's been a long two days.
9:42 p.m.: Wake up when Pujols hits a ball through the scoreboard.
10:05 p.m.: Cubs lose, 16-4.
10:14 p.m.: Take the "L" home.
10:15 p.m.: Decide to take Monday off.

With the Sox and Cubs struggling, it's the perfect time to ...

... remember you don't have to pick a side.

... try to track down the pieces of your broken heart and the brain cells you lost watching them.

... head out to the ol' ball-park! Plenty of seats, and a chance to show your kids how NOT to play baseball.

... mug one of the opposing team's coaches. No witnesses!

... tune in to hear Bob Brenly tee off on the Cubs. The man does not mince words.

Listen to John Williams from 12:30 to 3 p.m. on 720 WGN.

Enter a number between 1 and 9 in the empty squares. The clues are the numbers in the white circles that give the sum of the solution numbers: above the line are across clues; below the line are down clues. Thus, a clue of 3 will produce a solution of 2 and 1, and a 5 will produce 4 and 1, or 2 and 3, but, of course, which squares they go in will depend on the solution of a clue in the other direction. No digit can be repeated in a solution. Answer at redeye.chicago.com/puzzles. EDITED BY MICHAEL MEPHAM

Make a 2- to 7-letter word from the letters in each row. Add points of each word, using scoring directions at right. Finally, 7-letter words get a 50-point bonus. "Blanks" used as any letter have no point value. All the words are in the Official Scrabble Players Dictionary, 4th Edition. Find the answer at redeyechicago.com/puzzles.

IN OR OUT?

Breaking up with your job is really hard to do

By Dana Moran | REDEYE

Sorry, "Gossip Girl" fans. In an interview with Elle magazine, Taylor Momsen (right) revealed she has "quit acting" and hopes to tour with her band, The Pretty Reckless, "for the rest of my life." (Readers should note Momsen did not also quit insane black eye makeup and stripper shoes.) While we can't say we're sad to see Momsen leave the screen, we're not sure we completely believe her. Check out these entertainment industry "quitters" to see how long Momsen might hold out.

Ryan Phillippe

The evidence: "I think I'm going to end my acting career. I'm so introverted. I'm ready to be behind the scenes," he told the New York Post in April.

Or not: Phillippe's rep moved super fast to quash his statement, saying, "He has no plans to stop acting nor did he ever say that he was considering doing so." Nuh-uh, he totally did!

Amanda Bynes

The evidence: Bynes used the greatest tool at her disposal, Twitter, to announce her retirement. "I know 24 is a young age to retire but you heard it here first I've #retired," she tweeted in June 2010.

Or not: Just one month later, Bynes made up a new word, tweeting "I've unretired." Apparently this also seemed like a good time to plug her new movie, "Easy A." SCREEN GEM PHOTO

50 Cent

The evidence: "If Kanye West sells more records than 50 Cent on September 11, I'll no longer write music. I'll write music and work with my other artists, but I won't put out any more solo albums," he told hip-hop blog sohh.com in 2007.

Or not: While West outsold Fiddy that fateful day, 50 was back in 2009 with another solo effort, "Before I Self-Destruct." We're gonna go ahead and call "you pretty much already did" on that album title. GETTY IMAGES FILE PHOTO

Joaquin Phoenix

The evidence: "I want to take this opportunity ... to give you the exclusive ... that this will be my last performance as an actor. ... I'm not doing films anymore," he told Extra! in 2008.

Or not: Phoenix returned to the screen in September in his "documentary," "I'm Still Here," about his, er, rap career. Director Casey Affleck later revealed the whole thing was a hoax, which means we caught you acting, Joaquin, you dirty rat! REUTERS FILE PHOTO

HOUSEWIVES' MALL TOUR

Can't get enough of Bravo's "Real Housewives?" Soon you can see them in person at Water Tower Place mall, the Tribune's Luis Gomez reports. Ramona Singer ("New York") will host a wine tasting Aug. 31. Gretchen Rossi ("Orange County") will style guests Sept. 1. Teresa Giudice ("New Jersey") will sign copies of her books Sept. 8. The appearances are part of the mall's In Fashion: The Magnificent Mile Shopping Festival, taking place in the In Fashion Lounge on the third floor.

THE DIGIT

I look at Guy Fieri and I just think, 'Jesus, I'm glad that's not me.'

"No Reservations" host Anthony Bourdain in TV Guide Magazine.

$2.64 MILLION

Amount the 11-room, 8,000-square-foot Lakeview mansion that R&B singer R. Kelly once owned sold for on Thursday, according to the Tribune.

Family affair

Andy Bernard's family on "The Office" is complete. Josh Groban will guest star in the upcoming season as the brother of Ed Helms's crooning character, NBC says. Their parents will be played by Stephen Collins and Dee Wallace. No word on a duet, or a quartet.

Oh, how ... sweet?

It seems Kat Von D and Sandra Bullock's ex, Jesse James, have patched things up. The two split up recently, but now they are not only back together, People magazine says, they're engaged again.

Mon dieu

Gerard Depardieu, who reportedly took a whizz on a plane recently after being told he had to wait to use the restroom, reportedly has issued a statement about the incident through a friend. De-pee-dieu swears he was sober and the urinating was due to a prostate problem, according to the BBC. Maybe that's better than the alternative.

Extras! Extras!

Atomsphere Casting is looking for extras for Showtime's dramedy "Shameless" when it shoots in Chicago next week. They're looking to cast several extras of different ages and ethnicities. If you're interested, email extrascasting@gmail.com with "REGISTRATION - SHAMELESS" in the subject line. Include a recent picture, contact phone number, age, height, weight and sizes and year, make, model and color of your car. Also, list which days you are available: Aug 22, 23, 24, 25 and 26. More info on the Atomsphere Casting Facebook page.

Extra extras: If you look good in 1960s garb, NBC's "The Playboy Club" is doing a casting call for extras from 11 a.m.-3 p.m. Saturday at Academy for the Arts, 1010 W. Chicago Ave. More info at thedarlingseries.com.
